

THE HISTORY OF UCLA WOMEN'S VOLLEYBALL

Since the program's inception in 1965, UCLA women's volleyball has set a standard for success unmatched by any other collegiate volleyball program. Combined, the Bruins have claimed six national titles (three NCAA), nine conference championships (six Pac-10) and have made a remarkable 21 final four appearances. One of only two teams to win a national title in the 70s, 80s and 90s, UCLA has produced more All-Americans, beach professionals and U.S. National Team players than any other NCAA institution.

A majority of UCLA's success can be attributed to Hall of Fame head coach Andy Banachowski. One of the all time great teachers of the game, Banachowski ranks No. 1 in NCAA women's victories and has served as head coach in all but two seasons of the program's existence. The 1989 AVCA National Coach of the Year, Banachowski began coaching the Bruins in 1965 while still a student at UCLA. However, during the two seasons following his graduation, Mardi Hardy Monroe was the coach.

Shortly after his return to the program in 1970, Banachowski led the Bruins to collegiate volleyball's highest honor - a national championship. UCLA won the 1971-72 Division of Girls and Women's Sports (DGWS) crown, defeating Long Beach State in the championship match. Led by a trio of superstars in Colleen Boyd, Sharkie Boehnert and Laurie Lewis, the Bruins claimed their first national title and began a winning tradition that continues today.

Following the 1971-72 season, the DGWS evolved into the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (IAIW). The Bruins registered two AIAW top five finishes in 1972 and '73, finishing third and fourth respectively. UCLA would return to the top in 1974, capturing its first AIAW title, downing the University of Hawai'i in the championship match. Led by two of the greatest players in UCLA history in Terry Condon and Nina Grouwinkel, the Bruins claimed the title by winning eight consecutive games over the three-day event.

The Bruins and Rainbow Wahine would meet in the finals for the second-straight year in 1975, with UCLA again taking the national title, its third in four years. That season also marked the

and Leslie Knudsen led the Bruins to victory. With back-to-back titles and three national championships, UCLA quickly went from a program on the rise to arguably the most dominant team of the decade.

1971-72 DGWS Champions

The Bruins rounded out the 1970s with four top-three national finishes, garnering runner-up honors in '76 and '78. In 1981, the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) started to sponsor women's championships, giving women's volleyball two governing bodies. UCLA hosted the first-ever NCAA Championships at Pauley Pavilion, falling to USC in the title match. In 1982, the NCAA became the sole association for both men and women.

In 1984, one season after falling to Hawai'i in the championship game, the Bruins were again chosen to host the NCAA Tournament at Pauley Pavilion. Powered by All-Americans Liz Masakayan and Michelle Boyette, UCLA pulled off a miraculous, come-from-behind victory over Stanford in a five-game match to claim the 1984 national championship. In addition to first-team All-American honors, Masakayan would become UCLA's first winner of the Honda Award, given to the most outstanding collegiate volleyball player in the country.

In 1986 the Pac-10 Conference brought women's sports under its umbrella, and UCLA defeated USC 3-0 for the inaugural Pac-10 title. Over the first decade of Pac-10 volleyball, UCLA would stake its claim as the conference's top team, winning five additional Pac-10 titles to go along with four runner-up finishes. In addition, UCLA had four Bruins earn Pac-10 Player of the Year accolades, including two-time winner Daiva Tomkus, Annett Buckner, Julie Bremner and the Pac-10's women's Athlete of the Decade, Natalie Williams.

On a national level, UCLA entered the 1990s much like it did the 70s, winning back-to-back titles in 1990 and '91. Led by Honda Award recipient Natalie Williams and setter Holly McPeak, UCLA finished the 1990 campaign with a near perfect 36-1 overall record, defeating the University of Pacific 3-0 in the title game. Joining Williams in 1991 was All-American Elaine Youngs, as the two guided the Bruins to their second title in as many seasons, defeating Long Beach State in a five-game thriller at Pauley Pavilion. The following season, UCLA nearly became the first school in history to win three-straight national titles. However the Bruins had to settle for national runner-up honors after falling to Stanford in the title match.

Since the 1991 season, UCLA has finished as the national runner-up twice (1992 & 1994), registering back-to-back Pac-10 titles in 1992 and '93. The 1996 season marked the first time in school history that the Bruins failed to make a postseason appearance. However, UCLA made a quick return in 1997 and 1998, making it to the second round of the NCAA Tournament, and reaching the NCAA Regional Final in 1999, 2000, 2001, 2003 and 2004.

 Coaching Note: Andy Banachowski has been the head coach in all but two seasons of UCLA women's volleyball. During the two seasons directly following Banachowski's graduation from UCLA, (1968-69 & 1969-70) Mardi Hardy was the coach.

Governing Bodies Note: DGWS denotes the Division of Girls and Women's Sports which was the first sanctioning body for the national tournament and evolved into the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW) in 1972.

Format Note: The format of the women's volleyball season changed in 1972 so as to end before winter break. National Championship tournaments since the 1972 season have been played in December. Prior to this, the women's season concluded in January or February resulting in multiple year listings in some record books.

WHERE ARE THEY NOW?

Wiz Bachman — A 2001 UCLA graduate and NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship recipient, Bachman trained with USA Volleyball and played with the USPV prior to her selection as a member for the 2004 United States Olympic Team (indoor). Following her participation in Athens last summer, Bachman played last winter for an A2 professional team in Napoli, Italy. Her team had a very successful season, winning the league championship and earning a promotion to A1 for the upcoming season. After playing with USA Volleyball again in the summer of 2005, Bachman plans to stay and train with the national team in Colorado Springs for the upcoming year.

Julie (Bremner) Romias — Following the completion of her undergraduate degree at UCLA, Romias went on to medical school and her Kaiser Permanente practice is split between West Los Angeles and Inglewood. In addition, she continues to play beach volleyball on the AVP tour.

Kelly Flanagan — Another Bruin who went on to medical school, Flanagan is currently working as an Emergency Room doctor in New York City.

THE 25 GREATEST PLAYERS IN UCLA HISTORY

In 1997, for the first time in the history of the UCLA women's volleyball program, a list of all-time great players was compiled. The Bruins recognized the 25 greatest players in conjunction with the 25th anniversary of its first national championship team, the 1972 squad which captured the Division of Girls & Women's Sports title. Here are those players and their career statistics. Unfortunately, complete information is not available for everyone, especially those who played during the 1970s. All honors are first-team awards unless noted otherwise.

MAGAZINE COVERS FEATURE UCLA GREATS

UCLA's dominance in the area of covers for volleyball specific magazines is unparalleled and totals 91. A record 53 Volleyball Monthly covers included UCLA athletes, coaches and teams beginning with the first cover and continuing through the magazine's end in January of 1995. The cover of Volleyball magazine continues to feature UCLA athletes on a regular basis. Here is a list of those covers featuring Bruins (women indicated in boldface).
